How do I enroll?

You can enroll online by clicking on the Enroll Now button.

How often are study groups formed?

Registrations are open throughout the year. A new study group of students will start each month.

What do I need to be able to study?

All you need is a reliable internet connection and a laptop or tablet to study.

Is there an age minimum to enroll?

You must be at least 16 years old to enroll. You can work through all the online learning, and start writing exams when you turn 17 or 18, depending on your country's GED testing age policy.

Can I cancel at any time?

There is a 3-month minimum commitment. You may cancel at any time after three (3) months.

Does the monthly fee include exams?

No, the fee does not include GED test fees.

What happens if I work faster than my group?

We will never hold a student back as long as we can see that the student understands the work and is not just rushing to get through the work.

What happens if I don't complete all the subjects in one year?

Students can carry on with the online learning into the next year, however, we will allocate you into a new group that is more or less at your same level.

Must I have my video on during the group sessions?

This is a personal preference. Students are welcome to have their videos on, however, the tutor will share their screen with the group showing the resources being covered.

What happens if I work and cannot attend the weekly group sessions?

All sessions are recorded and loaded onto an online learning platform where students can access all their group's lesson recordings as well as all resources that were discussed in each lesson.

When do I write exams?

Students work on one subject at a time. Should you be ready to write your test at the end of that particular subject's block, you can then book and write immediately. Should a student still need more test preparation, the student will move on to the next subject before booking for a test, as students will acquire additional skills with each subject that will benefit them overall.
